Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

Claims 1 - 14 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Wright (6721802).

Regarding claim 1, Wright teaches an image transmitting method for transmitting an image from a client computer to a service server (Column 3, lines 40 – 45), the method comprising: selecting the image to be transmitted (Column 10, lines 32 – 34); obtaining image information limited by a destination service server (Column 4, lines 10 – 16); determining whether the selected image has image information suitable for the limited image information; performing image processing such that image information of the selected image is suitable for the limited image information when the image information of the selected image is unsuitable for the limited image information; and transmitting the selected image to the service server without any processing when the selected image has image information suitable for the limited image information, and transmitting to the service server the selected image being subjected to image processing when the image information is unsuitable for the limited image information (Column 3, lines 50 – 58).

Regarding claim 7, Wright teaches that the client computer inquires image information limited by the destination service server prior to transmission of the selected image, and the client computer obtains the limited image information from the service server (Column 4, lines 4 – 16).

Regarding claim 13, Wright teaches an image transmitting system for transmitting an image from a client computer to a service server (Column 3, lines 40 – 45), the system comprising: the client computer comprising: an image selecting device which selects the image to be transmitted (Column 10, lines 32 – 34); an image information obtaining device which obtains image information limited by a destination service server (Column 4, lines 10 – 16); a determining device which determines whether image information of an image selected by the image selecting device is suitable for image information obtained by the image information obtaining device; an image processing device which processes the selected image such that image information of the selected image is suitable for the limited image information when image information of the selected image is unsuitable for the limited image information; and a device which transmits a selected image to the service server without any processing when image information of the selected image is suitable for the limited image information, and which transmits to the service server the selected image processed by the image processing device when the image information is unsuitable for the limited image information (Column 3, lines 50 – 58); and the service server comprising: an image information storing device which stores image information limited by the service server; a device which transmits image information stored in the image information storing device to the client computer in response to request for obtaining image information from the client computer (Column 4, lines 4 – 16); and a device which receives a selected image transmitted from the client computer and performs image service on the selected image (Column 10, lines 38 – 42).

Regarding claims 3 and 9, Wright discloses that the client computer starts predetermined image display programs to offer a list of images on a display (Column 10, lines 32 – 34), and the client computer displays a variety of menu buttons based (Column 4, lines 20 – 25, where a browser add-on and a java applet have menu buttons to interface with users) on menu button information corresponding to various service servers (Column 10, lines 38 – 42, where the image is uploaded to the server and many services can be used with that image such as items sales and auctions); the image to be transmitted is selected from the list of images by using a pointing device (Column 10, lines 20 – 21); and a desired menu button is selected from the variety of menu buttons so that access is made to a service server corresponding to the selected menu button (Column 10, lines 38 – 42; Column 11, lines 7 – 12), where the image is uploaded to the server and many services can be used with that image such as items sales and auctions based on user specifics).

Art Unit: 2155

Regarding claims 5 and 11, Wright discloses that the image information limited by the destination service server is included in menu button information corresponding to the service server (Column 4, lines 46 – 55).

Regarding claims 2, 4, 6, 8, 10, 12, and 14, Wright teaches that the image information includes at least one of an image size, a file size, compressibility, an image format, and an image aspect ratio (Column 3, lines 62 – 63).

Prior Art

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.

U. S. Patent No. 6115739 issued to Ogawa, because it discloses a client selecting an image and uploading to an image server.
